

Wallis Hotel Reconstruction

ARCHITEXAS provided historic preservation and architectural services for the reconstruction of a brick hotel, originally constructed in 1891, for a new headquarters building for the Grapevine Convention and Visitors Bureau. The hotel which was demolished in the mid-1930s was reconstructed in Grapevine's original town square on Main Street. The hotel building serves as headquarters for the Grapevine Heritage Foundation as well as the Convention and Visitors Bureau. The Wallis Hotel anchors Liberty Park Plaza which provides a community gathering place. ARCHITEXAS produced the design and construction drawings, which accurately reconstructed the exterior brick hotel from a historic photograph with careful attention to original details. The interior was adapted to office use in the character of the 1890s architectural interiors, yet with modern technology and convenience.
