Master planning

ARCHITEXAS provided full architectural services for the restoration and addition to a historic 1917 colonial revival wood frame house in Highland Park. The owner desired accurate restoration of the exterior original portion of the house with complimentary addition for a kitchen and master bedroom suite designed in the character of the original house. The house required a complete new foundation, HVAC, plumbing and electrical systems. The interiors were restored with appropriate period finishes and furnishings in the original house with special emphasis on lighting. The master plan for the site included a new garage with quarters, swimming pool and period landscaping.
